PRESENTATION OF THE WORK

SO BLUE

Louise Lecavalier and partner Frédéric Tavernini risk all in the high-voltage atmosphere of this radical, raw, and haunting work set to the visceral music of Mercan Dede. Quick as thought, the body dictates its laws and transgresses its limits. “I wanted to allow the body to say everything it wants to say or can surprise itself by revealing, without censoring it, so that out of this profusion of spontaneous movements, something true and beyond our control emerges, something that exposes some of the states of confusion, excesses, and contradictions we’re made of — both the darkness that inhabits us and the unbearable lightness of being and of the soul.” (Louise Lecavalier)

Speed, slowness, abstraction, theatricality: all are valid means to express, represent, and incarnate — in a simple, complex, strange, and sometimes even spectacular manner — the noble, thoroughbred body, the animal body, the excessive body, the changing body, always mysterious, the perpetually-searching body, alive, untamed and nervous with and without constraints, the body that takes risks and even invents them as if constantly goaded to surpass itself, the body, object of play and of challenge, first alone, then paired, a known and unknown object of representation, the body, in trance and transcended, blue atomic, mutating into the body of breath, energy, and light, the body we no longer need to decode. Ultimately, it traces its own path, struggles, gives up, bounces back, and fades into space.

Here, the body becomes a “living art”, between sculpture, performance, and dance. Dance states succeed one another, producing waves that ripple through arms, legs, feet, neck, head, and face, occasionally in rhythmic, syncopated sections: vivid, obsessive sequences that also contrast with slower, more fluid ones, rigidly controlled to the point of abandonment. Almost all the movements are inspired by simple everyday gestures that become extreme when they are repetitive, decomposed, or cumulative.

Louise Lecavalier took the risk of plunging alone into the adventure of choreographic creation, assisted by France Bruyère, her rehearsal mistress and artistic collaborator. A large part of the intensely rhythmical soundtrack consists of pieces by Mercan Dede (alias Arkin Allen); this Montreal composer of Turkish origin is an essential, atypical world-music artist who fuses Ottoman tradition and Western modernity. The lighting is designed by Alain Lortie, who also collaborated with Louise Lecavalier in Children and A Few Minutes of Lock. Costumes are by stylist and creator Yso, now a Montrealer by adoption. The stage design, minimal and sober, gives the dance both a more intimate and a more open framework by delineating the performance space with bands of light-coloured dance floor set upon black.

\ LOUISE LECAVALIER AND COLLABORATORS

LOUISE LECAVALIER, choreographer, dancer and artistic director

Born in Montreal, Louise Lecavalier joined La La La Human Steps in 1981 in Oranges and went on to perform in all of the company's productions until 1999. In 1985, she became the first Canadian to win a Bessie Award in New York for her performance in Businessman in the Process of Becoming an Angel (1983).

Louise starred in Human Sex (1985), New Demons (1987), Infante (1991), and finally, in 2 (1995) and Salt (1998), works in which she attained remarkable maturity as a performer. As the La La La Human Steps icon and luminary for nearly two decades, she gave her heart and soul to her art, embodying dance at the outer edge with passion and unrestrained generosity, dazzling audiences everywhere. She also participated in all the company's spectacular collaborations, including the David Bowie Sound and Vision tour in 1990; The Yellow Shark concert by Frank Zappa and the Ensemble Modern of Germany in autumn, 1992; and Michael Apted's film, Inspirations, in 1996.

In 2003, Louise Lecavalier worked with choreographer Tedd Robinson, who created the duet Lula and the Sailor for Louise and himself, and Cobalt rouge, a piece for Louise and three male dancers which premiered at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa. In 2006, choreographers Benoît Lachambre and Crystal Pite each created a solo for Louise. These two works, "I" Is Memory and Lone Epic, together with Lula and the Sailor, made up a program that was performed 80 times between 2006 and 2009 in North America, Europe, and Japan. The above works were produced under the banner of Louise's company, Fou glorieux, a flexible working structure that she established in 2006, which has allowed her to pursue, in solo and duet form, research based on virtuosity, the surpassing of limits and risk-taking – a quest for the absolute in which she seeks to unveil the "more-than-human within the human."

The duet Is You Me, a collaboration between Louise Lecavalier and Benoît Lachambre produced by the company Par b.l.eux, was created in spring 2008 at Festival Transamériques in Montreal and was performed 54 times in international tours until the summer of 2011. The double bill comprising Children, a duet choreographed by Nigel Charnock, and A Few Minutes of Lock, three updated Édouard Lock duets, was presented 92 times from 2009 until the end of 2013 in North America, Europe, and Australia. In parallel to her intense touring schedule, Louise choreographed, staged, and performed a new work, So Blue. The first part of this piece previewed at Festival Sommerszene in Salzburg in July, 2012; the world premiere was on December 7, 2012, at tanzhaus nrw in Dusseldorf. So Blue continues to tour in North and South America, Europe, and Asia. In June 2015, in Toronto, it won the Dora Mavor Moore Prize for Outstanding Production following its presentation at the 2104 Luminato Festival. The world premiere of Louise's new work, Battleground, took place in Germany in February, 2016. Both So Blue and Battleground continue to be presented in extensive international tours. In March 2018, Louise created and performed the dance segment of the play Les Marguerites, directed by Denis Marleau and Stéphanie Jasmin and presented at Espace GO, Montreal.

Louise Lecavalier's career path has been strewn with awards and distinctions. In May 1999, she received the Jean A. Chalmers National Award, the first time this major Canadian dance award was given to a performer. In February 2003, Louise received a career grant from the Conseil des arts et des lettres du Québec. In December 2008, she was appointed an Officer of the Order of Canada for her illustrious contribution to contemporary dance. In June 2011, she was named Dance Personality of the Year 2010-2011 by the Syndicat professionnel français de la critique (French Critics' Union) in Paris. In November 2011, she became the first winner of the new Prix de la danse de Montréal, and in September 2013, in Positano, Italy, she won the Léonide Massine prize for Outstanding Female Dancer of the Year on the Contemporary Scene. The following year, Louise Lecavalier and Fou glorieux won two prestigious awards in March: Louise was among the winners of the 2014 Governor General Performing Arts Award for lifetime artistic achievement, while the company received the 29th Grand Prix du Conseil des arts de Montréal. In March 2015, the dancer was named a Companion of l'Ordre des arts et des lettres du Québec, one of 35 personalities honoured for their contribution to the resonance of Quebec's culture in the world. Louise Lecavalier won the 2017 Prix Denise-Pelletier, the highest distinction in the performing arts awarded by the Quebec Government, and in December 2017, she received a doctorate honoris causa from l'Université du Québec à Montréal.

A documentary on Louise and her work, Louise Lecavalier – In Motion, directed by Raymond St-Jean and produced by Ciné Qua Non Média, was broadcast by ZDF-ARTE, the European culture TV channel, in January 2018 and will be released in cinemas in Montreal, Quebec City, and Sherbrooke at the end of March 2018.

FRÉDÉRIC TAVERNINI, dancer

Frédéric Tavernini obtained a state diploma in classical and contemporary dance at l'École de danse de l'Opéra de Paris. He worked with the Ballet National de Nancy et de Lorraine before dancing as a soloist for Béjart Ballet Lausanne, the Ballet de l'Opéra de Lyon, Les Grands Ballets Canadiens de Montréal, and the Ballet national de Marseille. An independent dancer since 2005, he has collaborated with Juha Pekka-Marsalo, Louise Lecavalier (Cobalt rouge), Danièle Desnoyers, Lynda Gaudreau, Virginie Brunelle, Dave St-Pierre, Frédérick Gravel, Jan Martens, Rabih Mroué, Noé Soulier, Johannes Wieland, Matteo Fargion, and Ersan Mondtag.

As a choreographer, Frédéric has created: Li fet met (2003) and Le projet de la chambre humaine (2005) for the Jeune Ballet du Québec; Slonec Street (2004) for Les Ballets de la Parenthèse; Green (2004) for the June Events festival under the direction of Carolyn Carlson; Ju-ON (2005) for l'École supérieure de ballet de Montréal; and in collaboration with composer and musician Jean-François Laporte, Wedged in the Red Room (2009), an installation/performance work presented at l'Espace Totem in Montreal and at OFFTA 2010. Le tératome was presented at the Monument-national in Montreal as part of Tangente – Laboratory for contemporary movements. Wolf Songs for Lambs, premiered at the Théâtre La Chapelle in Montreal in April 2015, and Things are leaving quietly, in silence at the Monument-National in May, 2016. Wolf Songs for Lambs was on the program of Berlin's Out of Now Festival in March 2018.

MERCAN DEDE, music

Mercan Dede believes that when you put digital, electronic sounds together with hand-made, human ones, you can create universal language, capable of uniting old and young, ancient and modern, East and West. It's a bold claim, but the Turkish-born and Montreal-based musician/producer/DJ has the career and the music to back it up with over 800 concerts worldwide in his fifteen-year musical career. Mercan Dede's last three albums, Su[Water] (2004), Breath (2006) and 800 (2007), all topped the European World Music Chart. His last album 800, dedicated to the 800th birthday of the great Sufi philosopher Mevlana, was selected as the "World's Best World Music Album of 2008" by WOMEX, the leading international world music fair for professionals. In 2013, he released a new double album, Dünya / Earth. A diverse artist with an educational background and focus on fine arts, Mercan Dede has also started to display his paintings on his webpage (www.mercandede.com) after first showing them on a CNN documentary.

ALAIN LORTIE, lighting design

Alain Lortie has pursued his chosen career with passion for over thirty years. First associated with multidisciplinary artists Michel Lemieux, Marie Chouinard, and Édouard Lock, he went on to collaborate with Québécois and European singers Jean-Pierre Ferland, Diane Dufresne, Robert Charlebois, Daniel Bélanger, Peter Gabriel, Francis Cabrel, and Eros Ramazzotti. Named Lighting Designer of the Year several times at the ADISQ Awards, he also received the Masque for Best Lighting for Les âmes mortes (1996), and the Dora Mavor Moore Prize in Toronto for Ædipus Rex (1997). Among his major achievements are Starmania (1993), Notre-Dame de Paris (1998), Arturo Brachetti (1999), Cavalia (2003), and Odysseo (2011). He also worked on the Cirque du Soleil shows Soleil de minuit (2004), Delirium (2006), and Zarkana (2011). Alain Lortie has designed the lighting for several musicals in Asia, as well as two permanent circus productions for the Shanghai Circus World: Era (2005) and Kaleido (2010). From 2001 to 2005, he was the Artistic Director of the Celebration of Light at the Montreal High Lights Festival.

YSO, costume design

Born in Vientiane, Laos, Montreal-based Siphay Southidara, better known as Yso, holds a diploma in fashion design from the Collège Marie-Victorin in Montreal. Passionate about fashion design, artistic direction, and all forms of contemporary creation, he applies his many talents to each of these domains, and has been rewarded with numerous prizes. After beginning his career with Marie Saint Pierre and Todd Lynn, he went on to direct his own ready-to-wear line for women: "Yso." A long-time collaborator with fashion designer Denis Gagnon, he has worked as artistic director on several of his shows. All sectors of the artistic community, including contemporary dance, theatre, music, film and visual arts, have called upon his creative talents: Brigitte Haentjens (Sibyllines), Robin Aubert, Lhasa de Sela, Patrick Watson, Cirque du Soleil, Louise Lecavalier, Tedd Robinson, Sylvain Émard, BJM Danse, the Biennale de Montréal, etc. In 2010, Yso joined the Folio Montreal Agency as a stylist.

FRANCE BRUYÈRE, rehearsal director and assistant choreographer

Classically trained, France Bruyère quickly widened her field of interest to include contemporary and jazz dance. After her professional debut at age seventeen with Groupe Nouvelle Aire in Montreal, she danced for numerous choreographers and with several dance companies which, besides Nouvelle Aire, included Groupe Axis, the Louise Latreille dance troupe, Pointépiénu, and the Danny Grossman Dance Company in Toronto. After working as rehearsal director for La La La Human Steps for ten years, she taught at UQAM until 2017 and works for Louise Lecavalier as artistic assistant and rehearsal director.
